FAILED TO ACCEPT

A. & M. Regents Refuse to Allow Contractor $2,500 Extra.

The A. & M. board of regents did not receive the bid for the new library building recently completed at Stillwater. The board went over to Stillwater Thursday and today Governor Barnes and Tousley Bolton and Randy returned. There is $2,500 between the contractor and the board, which has interfered. It appears that the plans were changed somewhat and these extras are put in for this amount. The architect Fowcart, as Ellis the contractor, claims, instructed him to do certain things and the board would pay for it. The board refused to go outside its contract, but was willing to pay the contractor price for the materials used and the work in making the changes. Ellis refused to lower his bills which the board deemed excessive and the matter is tied up. Ellis was to have the building completed by January 1. He has failed along with it and is nine months behind. His contract with the board requires that he shall pay $5 per day for each day over that time it requires for him to complete the building. Ellis estimates that he will bring suit, and if he does the board will enforce the forfeiture of his day.

The board, after a session last night lasting until nearly 2 o'clock this morning, adjourned by motion of the gall of the president of the board. The contract for the building was let last year to John Ellis of Tulsa, I. T., for $10,000. His bid was accepted because it conformed more closely to the specifications and rules and was the lowest of all bids.
